GRADUATE SCHOOL OF SOCIAL WORK

The demand for social workers is growing and will continue to expand, according to the U.S. Department of Labor. The Graduate School of Social Work (GSSW), is meeting the call with more than 300 students pursuing the MSW degree.

GSSW has four sub-specializations that have already achieved excellence—veterans; the aging; severe and persistent mentally ill; and Jewish social welfare. Over 100 agencies serve as clinical partners, providing opportunities for Touro students to contribute 120,000 hours of service annually as part of the fieldwork educational component.

GSSW's diverse and growing student body of clinical practitioners serve at-risk and vulnerable populations - the embodiment of Touro's mission to create a more just and compassionate society.

PROFESSIONAL SCHOOLS

JACOB D. FUCHSBERG LAW CENTER

As a national leader in experiential education, Touro Law Center offers students myriad opportunities to gain practical workplace skills. With its programmatic innovation and responsiveness to trends in the legal profession, Touro Law Center implemented Portals to Practice. This is a five-year plan that provides doctrinal knowledge, skills development, infusion of professional values and early practice opportunities such as the Veterans' and Servicemembers' Rights Clinic. The plan also offers integration of practice experience into courses; apprenticeships that specialize in practice and licensure; and a post-JD experience where graduates may choose to launch a law practice in the Law Center's unique Community Justice Center—an incubator for start-up law firms. Touro Law offers flexible programs to meet the diverse needs of qualified candidates including part time day and evening four and five year programs, a two year accelerated program and a January enrollment option.
